

INLE HERITAGE HOSPITALITY VOCATIONAL TRAINING CENTER

Teaching Fellow Post
Inle Lake, Myanmar

Post Summary:

Fellows posted at the Inle Heritage House Vocational Training Center work as an English language teacher at the vocational school as well as work with the founder of IHHVTC on various cultural sustainability projects. The fellow may also help to coordinate the internship program and has some flexibility to explore additional projects that vary by the fellow's interests or skills.

Partner:

IHHVTC was founded by Yin Myo Su and is an NGO that looks after the cultural and natural heritage of the Inle Region, through hospitality education and water resource management. It also serves as a one of a kind sustainable business model by being entirely supported through its hotel and restaurant ventures.

Location and Logistics:

Inle Lake is one of Myanmar's top tourist attractions and one of the most beautiful and biologically diverse lakes. Visitors travel here to see the lake's natural beauty, trek, and learn about the many ethnic minority groups that live around the lake. The Inthar people are one of these minority groups and they both live and support themselves on the lake by growing floating crops and living in stilted houses on the lake.

Housing:

Fellows live and work at the school near the lake which is only accessible by boat. Fellows will therefore spend most of their time at the school. On the weekends they may have accommodations provided for them on the mainland at founder Yin Myo Su's other hotel.

Desired Qualifications:

Teaching experience, experience in the ecotourism industry, and someone comfortable with being in a very small, isolated environment.
